COUNTY NOT IN BAD CONDITION

What a Few Well Informed Gentlemen Think of the Situation in Guilford.

In the course of an article on Fifth district politics in the Sunday Charlotte Observer Mr. H. E. C. Bryant said, writing from Hillsboro:

Guilford county is in bad condition. The local fight in Greensboro between the dispensary advocates and those who opposed it has overshadowed the main issue. If you ask a Guilford Democrat how his county stands he will give you this answer in substance: "O, we have them downed." "Them," either means the dispensary men or the antis. This should not be the condition, but it is. The local question should be eliminated until the amendment is passed. The only way to ascertain a correct idea of the political condition of a section is to talk with the voters—the rank and file. I have heard nothing encouraging from Guilford. However, there is time yet, if the proper kind of work is done.

Much hard work remains to be done before the election and the local organizations must do it. Tons of literature are being sent out from Republican headquarters and most of it is going in the wake of the Democratic speakers. The local workers must run down falsehoods and keep the people well informed as to the true condition in the State.

Mr. Bryant, who is known to be a very accurate and conservative writer, was evidently ignorant of the true condition of affairs when he wrote the above. His information probably came, either directly or indirectly, from a Republican source or from an extremely pessimistic Democrat. While the Democrats have not claimed the earth in Guilford, it has been felt that the county was reasonably safe. It is true that the campaign did not open here as early as in a great many counties, but a short, snappy campaign is often productive of as good results in the end as the long drawn out contest.

Before the campaign opened, the Democratic forces had been organized and gotten in good working order, and while it is apparent that much has been accomplished, it is not denied that there is need of much more work—hard, persistent work. It is such that counts in a campaign like this. To show that the condition is not bad, below is given the gist of interviews with several well known gentlemen whose opinions are certainly worthy of consideration:

Democratic Chairman Scales said: "Our people are at work, and with the present effort kept up, there is no doubt of a Democratic victory. The organization is in good shape and the party workers are determined and enthusiastic. We are not yet 'counting eggs,' though both the amendment and the ticket will receive good majorities. It only remains for every Democrat to register and do his duty from now until the polls close. This will insure a certain victory."

While Republican Chairman Glenn does not concede the Democratic ticket a majority, he does not name the figures of a Republican majority.

Mr. Z. V. Taylor, Secretary of the Democratic County Executive Committee, is well acquainted with the county and the Democratic strength. When asked as to the chances of the county going against the amendment and electing the Republican ticket, he said: "It is absurd to talk about defeating either the amendment or our ticket."

J. A. Pritchett, Esq., one of the oldest and best known Republicans in the county, for many years a prominent party leader, said: "I believe the Democratic ticket will be elected, and the amendment will unquestionably be adopted in Guilford county."

Solicitor Brooks, who has been over the county quite a good deal, finds much satisfaction. He said: "I have spoken at a number of points in the county, with the candidates at several places, and must say that I am gratified at the enthusiasm displayed by the Democrats. Good crowds attend the speakings and everybody appears to be getting down to work. If the election were to be held this week I believe the Democrats would receive as large majorities as in 1898, when we won an unprecedented victory."

Mr. J. W. Forbis has made speeches at a number of places in the county and is in a position to know something of the condition of affairs. He thinks the majorities of the Democratic candidates will be as great as two years ago.

Mr. John J. Nelson, clerk of the Superior Court, and recognized as one of the most astute politicians in the county, says, from the way the Democrats are at work, he can see no reason why the ticket should not be elected by a big majority.

Col. John A. Barringer, when questioned, said he had not been over the county, but from what he could learn, he thought both the amendment and the ticket would receive good majorities.

Prof. M. H. Holt, of Oak Ridge, a Democratic stronghold, thinks the chances of Democratic success are very bright indeed. The people of his township are very enthusiastic.

Ex-Sheriff John W. Cook, when asked if he believed the county to be in a bad condition, replied emphatically, "No." He says the Republicans cannot carry the county this year.

The above interviews are not published for the purpose of elating Democrats or inspiring them with over confidence, but to show that we are on the road to victory, if the good work is only kept up. It will not do for a single Democrat to lag behind or cease his efforts. Victories are not won in this way. It is well to remember that the enemy is vigilant and ever on the alert, ready to take advantage of any and every opportunity that presents itself. It should be constantly borne in mind that no disaffection or personal differences in the Republican ranks will debar any party worker from giving the ticket his hearty support.

Probably the most important duty to be performed by Democrats is to see that every Democrat is registered. Much progress was made in this direction last week, but there yet remains much to be done and but little time in which to do it. The registration books will close at sunset next Saturday, and any voter who may have failed to register by that time will be unable to vote. Remember that a full vote is necessary to insure Democratic success, and to secure a full vote every Democrat must be properly registered.

THE WHEELS OF JUSTICE.

Violators of the Sanitary Ordinance in Court—The Cost of a 15-Cent Apron.

Several violators of the law were called to justice in the Police Court yesterday afternoon, the majority of the cases being against violators of the sanitary ordinance. Some of these people pleaded ignorance, while others claimed that they had been unable to comply with the law. The Mayor reserved judgment in all the cases except that against the sanitary department of the Agricultural and Mechanical College, which was referred to the Board of Alderman.

For engaging in a fisticuff at the Southern passenger station, two rival colored waiters at restaurants were fined a dollar each.

Cornelius Gant was called to answer for stealing an apron—a commonplace, every-day, greasy garment—from Squire Simmons. According to the testimony of the latter, the apron was not worth over 10 or 15 cents, but the Mayor had no jurisdiction in the case and was compelled to bind Cornelius over to the Superior Court. And thus this dirty apron, worth only a few cents, will cost the county more than a dozen bolts of cloth from which aprons might be made.

Ab. Alston, the negro who shot his paramour, Lou Carr, some days ago, was also sent on to the higher court. The woman had a close shave for her life, and Ab. may thank his stars that he is not to be tried for murder.

NO MORE DOUBT ABOUT IT.

It is Now Accepted as Certain That the Foreign Legations in Pekin Have Been Wiped Out.

Washington, July 16.—Without exception, today, the foreign representatives in Washington accepted as certain that the foreign legations and ministers at Pekin have been wiped out. At the same time there is not a word confirmatory from any of the foreign officers and the conclusion is based on the accumulating unofficial data that the slaughter occurred about July 7. Even among the high Chinese officials hope has been about given up, but they maintain that there is no official information and that they are as much in the dark as others.

Lovers in Old Age.

The truth that a man never becomes too old to woo and wed was exemplified this morning, when Mr. Zechariah Groome, aged 72 years, and Mrs. Isabella Davis, aged 45 years, were married in this city. The ceremony which made the twain one was performed by J. A. Pritchett, Esq.

ALL ONE WAY.

One of the largest crouds that has yet greeted the candidates attended the joint canvass at D. P. Faust's, in Rock Creek township, yesterday. The Democratic speakers were at their best and had the crowd with them.

Gen. Glenn's opponent, Mr. Starbuck, was present for the first time during the campaign. He recited a part of Gen. Grosvenor's speech on the glories of Republicanism. Mr. Starbuck is good at memorizing and got off the speech to the entire satisfaction of himself.

Messrs. Roberson and Whitaker annihilated Mr. Douglas, who accused the Democrats of trying to bulldoze him. Mr. Robinson showed that Mr. Douglas had changed front every day during the campaign and declared that the Lord only knew what he would say next.

The Democratic candidates are very well pleased with the enthusiasm displayed throughout the county. The country people are at work with a will, determined to do their duty towards rolling up a big majority. It only remains for the work to be kept up without intermission.

Men Killed by a Blast.

Utica, N. Y., July 17.—Two men were killed and several injured by the premature explosion of a blast in the Blue Mountain Lake this morning. The dead men were blown to pieces. The blast was under water, being used by dredgers.

Trains Collide.

Altoona, Pa., July 17.—A Cleveland and Cincinnati express train collided with a freight this morning near Spruce Creek, on the Pennsylvania railroad. An engineer was killed and a fireman badly injured.

Captain Lemley Not Killed.

A special from Washington, published in yesterday's Telegram, stated that Capt. Lemley, of Winston, had been killed in an engagement before Tien-Tsin on the 13th. A later dispatch announces that he was not killed, but badly wounded.

One of Senator Hanna's friends is authority for the statement that the Ohio boss has a strong vein of superstition in him. It is even declared that he is a regular patron of an old German woman, Frau Gutekanot by name, who lives in Cleveland, and has great renown there as a soothsayer.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY.

Plans are being made for the construction of a tunnel under the Hooghly river at Calcutta. The river at this point is about 36 feet deep, and, according to one of the plans the tunnel will pass 12 feet beneath the bed of the river. The length of the tunnel proper will be 6,875 feet.

He was at one time the Chief Director of the Tien Tsin University.

The application of electrozone for disinfecting purposes is being tried at Havana since its occupation by the United States government. A plant similar to that which was used in New York harbor for the disinfection of garbage has been installed, and the electrozone, which is electrolyzed sea water, is used for disinfecting the streets, the sewerage and the harbor. The cost of disinfecting is said to be about 50 cents per thousand gallons.

ALLIES SUCCESSFUL.

RENEWED FIGHT ON SATURDAY.

AND TOOK THE WALLS AND FORTS.

An Immense Army of 100,000 Chinese are now Encamped Near Shanghai Ready to Pounce Upon That City Should Foreigners Land Forces—The Killed and Wounded of the Allies Numbers Nearly Eight Hundred—Chinese Threaten to Fire Huge Oil Tanks—The Boxers Have Even Spread to Corea.

By Wire to the Telegram.

London, July 17—A Shanghai dispatch of today says that the allied forces resumed the attack of Friday upon the Chinese walled city of Tien-Tsin on Saturday morning, and succeeded in making breaches in the walls and in capturing all the forts. The Chinnse were completely routed and the allies took possession of the native city and the defenses.

The total losses of the allies in the engagements of Thursday, Friday and Saturday were about eight hundred killed and wounded. The Russians and Japanese suffered the most.

READY TO ATTACK SHANGHAI.

London, July 17—A Shanghai dispatch says that a hundred thousand Chinese, armed with Mausers, and with modern artillery, are encamped in three places within forty miles of Shanghai. These men and guns are to be used to beseige Shanghai should the foreigners land forces or attack the Woosung forts.

BOXERS IN COREA.

Washington, July 17—Boxers have broken out in Corea. Minister Allen cables that Boxers had, on Saturday, destroyed a Catholic mission three miles from the frontier and fifty miles from the American mines.

FORTS OF CITY IN ALLIES' HANDS.

Washington, July 17—Seven hundred and seventy-five men of the allied forces, of whom 215 were Americans, were killed and wounded at the battle of Tien-Tsin, according to an official report from Admiral Remey received by the navy department today dated at Chefoo today. The dispatch arrived early this morning. The Admiral had heard that of the Americans killed forty are marines, the remaining 175 being officers and men of the Ninth Infantry. So far no American officer has been reported killed except Col. Liscum and Capt. Davis of the marine corps. The dispatch contains the important news that the assault on the native city was successful and that the city and forts are now in the possession of the allies.

The Bureau of navigation has also received a cablegram from Remey, dated, today, saying that he hoped to put the wounded at Tien-Tsin either in a hospital at Taku or aboard the Solace. The communications are very uncertain. The casualties reported yesterday appear to be confirmed.

CABINET MEETS THIS AFTERNOON.

The Chinese minister here this morning received a cable announcing the safety of the foreign ministers on July 9. He communicated the same to Secretary Hay at once. A cabinet meeting was called for this afternoon to consider the situation.

TO FIRE THE GREAT OIL TANKS.

London, July 17.—Telegrams from Shanghai and Chefoo indicate an increasingly serious state of affairs. The foreign consuls at Shanghai are said to have sent word to their governments that there was urgent need for more warships to protect the fort of Shanghai. It seems that the Chinese have already threatened to fire the great oil tanks on the Pao Tung side of the city.

A dispatch from Tien-Tsin says that during Friday's fighting over forty guns bombarded the Chinese position. Eight Chinese guns were captured and the enemy was driven out of the west arsenal.

BUTLER AND HOLTON CAUCUS.

STILL GETTING IT IN THE NECK.

Chairman Holton Preparing to Resume His Indigo Hue--Bad Crop Conditions Caused by Want of Rain--Congress Expected to be Convened.

Special Correspondence of the Telegram.

Raleigh, July 17—The government crop reports for North Carolina, issued today is far from pleasing. The fact is conditions are critical. The report says the returns from correspondents indicate that the drought in central and eastern North Carolina has become quite serious, and that all crops have been materially injured thereby. Very warm, dry weather has been almost uninterrupted since July 1st, and although showers occurred generall Thursday evening (12), the amount of rainfall was very small and did hardly more than temporarily revive vegetation. At this period of the crop season abundant moisture is indispensable and a general, soaking rain is much needed. The temperature during the weak was moderate but still above normal, and the heat gradually increased towards the close. The sunshine was abundant and conditions generaliy quite favorable for farm work, so that killing grass and weeds made rapid progress, and laying by crops is approaching completion. The condition of crops is still fairly good, but all are suffering considerably from drought, except perhaps in mountain districts. This is especially true of corn, tobacco, minor crops and gardens, while cotton appears to have stood the drought remarkably well, as few reports of damage to that crop were received. While not growing very rapidly, cotton has still a healthy appearance, and is bloooming and setting fruit fairly well. It is reported to be failing rapidly, in Johnston and a few other counties. Corn neeeds rain badly everywhere; chinch bugs are numerous in several counties; the crop is clean, has been generally laid by, and would be restored to excellent condition by timely rains. Tobacco has also been injured, and in some places has run up too narrow; topping is underway, and cutting and curing have become general in the south and east portions. Threshing wheat continues actively, with yields even better than anticipated. Harvesting oats and rye is practically over in the west. It is feared that gardens will be ruined without rain soon. All minor crops, especially peanuts, field peas and melons, are deteriorating. Haying is progressing under favorable conditions with prospects for a good yield.

The Populist and Republican statesmen, Senator Buller and district attorney Holton met here yesterday. They conferred up town, they conferred at the depot, while several henchmen hovered near, among the latter Isaac Meekins, nominee for congress in the First district. Chairman Holton was asked as he was departing "what did you do?" He replied, with one of his refrigerating smiles, "nothing; I never do anything. Don't you know that?" Your correspondent concurred with him in his view of his work and said, "that's so; you are right." In two weeks Chairman Holton will be looking and feeling about as blue as he did the day after the 1898 election, when he was a deep indigo.

Judge and Mrs. Purnell have gone to Wytheville to remain a month.

The quartermaster general will this week equip the First and Third regiments with quartermasters' stores. He is daily looking for the rifles and other ordnance stores for these regiments. He says the Second regiment is equipped and has sent in no requisition for supplies. The strength of each regiment at present is 600. On a war footing it would be 2½ times as large.

It is the expectation here that Congress will be convened quickly to authorize the enlistment of volunteers for the war with China.

The affidavit regarding the bribing or buying of the editor of the Asheville Gazette causes a decided sensation. To use a slang phrase the Republicans are getting it in the neck all around.

CHARLOTTE NEWS.

Correspondence of the Telegram.

Charlotte, July 17.—At 3:15 o'clock this morning fire was discovered in the store of Scott Guffin in the northern part of the city. The store and contents were consumed and a house adjoining almost entirely burned. A key found in the store door renders it probable that robbery occurred before the fire. Loss about $1,500.

Criminal court convened this morning at 9 o'clock. Only one murder case, that of William Kell, will be tried. Kell is the negro who recently killed Anna Ardrey in a jealous fit.

Mr. Henot Clarkson, who is to be chief marshal at the big Democratic rally to be held here on July 31st, says today that the occasion will be something magnificent. The rally will be addressed by the best speakers to be obtained, and one of the features of the gathering will be the big basket dinner at the park, where the speaking takes place. The parade will be something to make the Democracy of Mecklenburg feel proud of what she has done. Mr. Clarkson says the details of the program will be made public in a few days.

A negro section hand had his leg badly injured this morning while running out of the way of a small landslide which occurred in a cut where the hands were working. The man ran into a wheelbarrow and dislocated his knee and was covered with loose earth. The injury is not serious.

ELDER BODENHEIMER WRITES.

Discusses the Amendment and Asks All His Friends to Vote for It—Knocks Out the Unconstitutional Argument.

To the Editor of the Telegram:

I wish to express to my brethren and fellow citizens of North Carolina my views of the two subjects that now confront every citizen of our beloved State. The first is negro rule and the second is the constitutional amendment as a civil remedy and a preventive of harsher measures. In plain English language the entire issue now before the people of North Carolina to decide by the ballot in August next is, "Shall the white men of North Carolina rule and govern the legislative, judicial and executive branches of her affairs, or shall the negro, in part, or in whole?" This is the entire issue in a nut shell, and before any man can answer this question by his vote at the ballot box he is bound to arrive at one of two conclusions: In order to cast a patriotic vote against the amendment he must come to the conclusion that the negro race is better qualified by instinct to make and administer laws than the white race are, both by instinct, education and experience. If such is your honest conviction—that the negroes of North Carolina are superior in these respects to the white people of your State, and that you, your sons, your daughters and your wives are and will be better provided for, better protected, better respected, and the financial and educational interests of your State better managed, the morals of your countrymen enhanced, crime suppressed and you and your family elevated in the minds of the intelligent white men of your country—all this you must see and conscientiously believe before you can vote against the amendment and dare call your vote a patriotic vote. The issue for you to decide is, "Who shall rule this State, the white men or the negroes?" It is not the constitutionality of the amendment—that decision belongs to the Supreme Court, and that tribunal cannot render an opinion until after the amendment is ratified and an action brought before the court. If your fears keep you from voting for the amendment, less, by so doing, you might vote against the dear Constitution of the United States, then, as you do not know that it is, or is not, constitutional, why not be afraid to vote against the amendment for fear it is unconstitutional? A rule that does not work so as to prove itself is not true. Again. If the amendment is unconstitutional, as Republican office hunters affirm it is, why do they try to scare the poor, ignorant white man, that can't read and write, by telling him that if it is ratified that he will never be allowed to vote again? Do they not know that if the amendment is unconstitutional that it is a dead letter the minute the courts so declare? How, then, could it keep you from voting? Why are the Republican drivers working day, night and Sunday to prevent the ratification of the amendment if they believe it to be unconstitutional? Why not wait until it is ratified and then simply carry the case before the Supreme Court of the United States and set it all aside? Would they not do that if they believed it? So much for the constitutional scare-crow.

To my brethren, among whom I have been preaching for nearly half a century, with scarcely a doubting Thomas as to my sincerity and veracity, why then have you any reason to doubt what I say when I tell you that no native born white man will be disfranchised by the amendment. I know I can understand the language of the law, and it positively does not touch a white man, and I would as soon tell you a lie in religion as in politics. A lie is a lie, no matter on what subject. I have no prejudice against the negro in the sphere for which he is fitted, but he never was intended for a ruler in Israel. In the days of slavery, and during the Civil War, the negroes acted nobly. Their old and young masters, and nearly every able-bodied white man in the Southern States, were called from their homes to the field of battle, trusting their homes, leaving wives and daughters to the faithful care of their slaves, who did not betray that sacred confidence but supported those committed to their charge, and most of them would at that time have laid down their lives in defence of the life and virtue of their mistress, if necessary.

I do not remember a single outrage committed during those days of honest trials, but, alas! how is it now, since the negroes are set up by unprincipled, designing, office seeking white men? Look at the insults offered to white ladies; look at the increase of that most diabolical crime of rape; look at the lynching, and a thousand other crimes committed by the same race? Why are they so much worse now than when they were slaves? Did freedom change their nature? No, but I will tell you what is the cause: It is a class of low white men who use the negro as the monkey used the cat's paw, simply to pull the roasted chestnuts out of the hot embers for the monkey to eat, while the poor cat licked its burnt paws. If political equality is not social equality I know nothing that is, and this causes the negro to make advances to his ruin. Take him out of politics and in a few years you will see the old-fashioned, honest, trustworthy, contented negro. Crime will abate, industry will increase and the lying, white scalawags that have ruined the peace and prosperity of the former negro to get in office himself, as well as disgraced his own race—I say you will see the time, white men, and the contented negro on the road to prosperity, while you will see the office seeking white carpet-baggers packing their sinful falsehoods in their political coon-skins, marked: "Bound for the Land of Nod," and, like Cain, exclaiming: "My punishment is greater than I can bear; for everyone that seeth me shall slay me." Then will all the white men and all the sensible negroes say with the voice of thunder, Amen and Amen.

In conclusion, I believe the amendment will carry by at least 10,000, and in five years thereafter the man that would dare to advocate its repeal would not get votes enough in this State to make him a winding sheet if they were a foot square, and in five years more the Republican party will be made up of white men and it will be close elections like it was in the good old days of the Whigs and Democrats, and no matter which is elected, we can all cheerfully submit, knowing he is a white man elected by white men. But woe be unto the man who fights white supremacy now. It is better for him to have a negro tied about his neck and him cast into the middle of the sea.

PAINTING LEO'S PORTRAIT.

H. J. Thaddeus Gives Some Interesting Reminiscences.

H. J. Thaddeus, the artist, makes the following interesting contribution to a recent issue of Mainly About People:

If, as the dictionary declares, a sitter be "one who sits," the term is paradoxical applied to Pope Leo XIII. Nervously restless, he rarely sits for any length of time, and never without incessant changes of attitude. The difficulty of producing, under these circumstances a satisfactory likeness of his holiness, maye be imagined; rapidity of draughtsmanship is indispensible, and I found quick studies of his individual features, the deep-set eye, the mobile mouth, large and characteristic ear, of great assistance. The Pope has a preconceived idea of how he desires to have his portrait appear. Squaring himself in his seat, his hand upraised, with two fingers extended as in the act of benediction, a conventional smile drawing back his colorless lips, he would sit motionless for a moment, stiffening every muscle as we all do in photographic expectancy; then, abandoning it, "Voila, mon enfant!" he would exclaim, with an air of triumph.

This, however, was exactly as I had determined not to represent Leo XIII. In painting him, one must, as it were, paint the mind and soul of this remarkable man, for they seem to shine through the frail, almost diaphanous flesh they have subdued. Intelligent, ascetic, with broad forehead, the thin skin of which shows the tracery of the veins, with massive features and deep-set eyes of startling brilliancy in a countenance pallid and composed as that of a corpse—it was thus that Leo XIII appeared to me, a dominant and imposing personality, whether arrayed in the simple sottana of white wool and the plain calotta (skull-cap) as I first painted him, or in splendid pontifical robes and priceless gems.

The Pope has changed but little since I had the honor, in 1884, of painting him. How well I remember my introduction to him! It was my first important commission. The Pope received me with the utmost kindness, but could not conceal his surprise that so young a man should have been chosen for the work. He was much interested in the portrait, and gave me every assistance, except that of remaining still, which, perhaps, was out of his power. When I submitted the portrait he was somewhat distressed at the look of age given therein, and he remonstrated gently, saying, "Mon, enfant, les Papes n'ont pas d'age!" And truly Leo XIII's frail form has set the years at defiance. For, while prepared for death, as befits one of his supreme sanctity, he believes that his race here below is not yet run. "Long life," he said, "is a characteristic of the Pecci family; they live long, but death comes to them suddenly in the end—very suddenly," he repeated. This was certainly the case with his holiness's grandfather, who died very suddenly indeed, but at the age of 96.

During the sittings Leo XIII talked insessantly in French sometimes, sometimes in Italian, and always with extreme rapidity. His range of subjects was extensive. He spoke of strange experiences in brigand-infested Benevento, where as delegate he restored peace; of England, and of his nunciature at Brussels. He told me, to my great surprise, that he had only commenced to study French when appointed to Belgium, and "I could speak it as fluently as I do now by the time I reached Brussels," he said. "King Leopold used to exclaim, 'I forget Pecci is an Italian.'" Virgil and Dante, Kneipp and the water cure, the condition of Ireland—these are some of the subjects on which Leo XIII. discoursed with knowledge and discernment, taking snuff constantly. Latterly, by medical advice, he has renounced this, his one indulgence. I have been indeed fortunate in my sitters—Gladstone, the Abbe Liszt, the general of the Jesuits, Sir Richard Owen—and many others, whose conversation was an intellectual treat; but, inspired by his wonderful personality and gracious kindliness, I never worked with deeper interest than at the portraits of my august sitter, Pope Leo XIII.

The following story of similar trend was attributed to Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman: "A Scotsman was asserting that all great poets were of his nation. 'Well, but,' said one, 'how about Shakespeare?' You can't say that he was Scotsman.' 'To which the other replied: 'His talents would justify the supposition.'"

CATARRH: FORERUNNER OF CONSUMPTION.

Few realize what a deep-seated, obstinate disease Catarrh is, regarding it as a simple inflammation of the nose and throat, little or no attention is given it. But, however insignificant it may seem at first, it is serious and far-reaching in its results.

The foul secretions entering the circulation poison the entire system. The stomach, kidneys—in fact all the organs—feel the effect of this catarrhal poison, and when the lungs are reached its progress is rapid and destructive, and finally ends in consumption.

It frequently happens that the senses of hearing and smell are in part or entirely lost, the soft bones of the nose eaten into and destroyed, causing intense suffering and greatly disfiguring the face. While sprays, washes and salves may give temporary relief, no permanent benefit can be expected from such treatment.

CATARRH IS A CONSTITUTIONAL OR BLOOD DISEASE, and far beyond the reach of mere local remedies. Those who rely upon them for a cure lose valuable time, meet with disappointment and allow the disease to take firmer hold. Only a real blood remedy can reach this troublesome and dangerous disease.

S. S. S cures Catarrh because it first cleanses and builds up the blood, purifies it, makes it rich and healthy, stimulates and puts new life into the sluggish worn-out organs, and thus relieves the system of all poisonous accumulations.

Mrs. Josephine Polhill, of Due West, S. C., writes: "I had Catarrh, which became so deep-seated that I was entirely deaf in one ear, and all inside of my nose, including part of the bone, sloughed off. When the disease had gone this far the physician gave me up as incurable. I determined to try S. S. S. as a last resort, and began to improve at once. It seemed to get at the seat of the disease, and after a few weeks' treatment I was entirely cured, and for more than seven years have had no sign of the disease."

S. S. S. is made of roots, herbs and barks of wonderful tonical and purifying properties. It is the only vegetable blood purifier known, and a certain and safe cure for all blood troubles. Send for our book on Blood and Skin Diseases, and at the same time write our physicians about your case. They will cheerfully give you any information or advice wanted. We make no charge for this.

THE BACKING CAMPAIGN OF THE CRAWFISH.

It is said that certain animals and human beings often bear a striking resemblance to each other. Thus there are faces known as leonine, aquiline, foxy, and so on, the characteristics of the individuals bearing them being supposed to correspond in a degree to those of the lion, the eagle and the fox. Perhaps all men have slight characteristics corresponding to some animal.

Take, for instance, our friends of the anti-dispensary league. They act all the world like a crawfish. In fact, the whole anti-campaign has been a series of evolutions similar to those practiced by this interesting crustacea when approached by an enemy. When a crawfish sees a supposed enemy approaching, he stands like a lion, brandishing his antennae and pretending to be the hungriest thing in the whole pond for a fight. He stands his ground defiantly, as much as to say he dares the enemy to come any further. He appears to be hungry for a fight till his antagonist gets in fighting distance, when suddenly he backs like a streak of greased lightning to another place and proceeds to dare again, only to again dart away to another part of the pond. The anti-dispensary leaders at first said the people of Greensboro were vociferously opposed to the dispensary. Yet at the very first election they refused to come out and vote. Since that time they have kept up the cry of minority rule, and demanding that the people be heard, but whenever the people were ready to speak, away went the crawfish to some other place. The people of Greensboro in more ways than one have said that the majority want the dispensary, but each time the crawfish would whine that they didn't have a fair show. They began to say that it must come before the county convention, which body would either condemn it or refer it to a whole vote of the people. But that body said emphatically that negroes were not doing business this year, and it would be left to a white primary vote of the county. They have been saying all along that if the question ever got to a vote, even of the white people of the county, it would be done for. That vote will occur two weeks from now. Will they crawfish from that? Are there any indications that they will?

In the meantime the snapping and snarling at the dispensary has continued and The Telegram's challenge to stop their baby talk and come up with some argument in favor of the saloons, has been met in the usual crawfish style. There is a repetition of "rag chewing" and crawfish evolutions—a frivolous, negative, backing campaign from start to finish.

If the anti-dispensary league continues to crawfish, it will lose the power of forward locomotion altogether. Let it give at least one argument in favor of saloons.

The story that Admiral Seymour was compelled to shoot his own wounded during the retreat of the Pekin relief expedition, to prevent their torture by the Chinese when Seymour could no longer carry them, is the most gruesome thing yet.

THE FEARFUL NEWS FROM CHINA.

The Telegram's dispatches of yesterday afternoon saying that a fierce fight occurred on Friday, when the forces of the powers attacked, with heavy loss and a repulse, the Chinese on the walls of Tien-Tsin, were confirmed last night and this morning and further news comes today, that the attack was renewed with success on Saturday morning. But what is worse, the official people at Washington have fully agreed that the various rumors of the massacre of all the foreigners in Pekin have been sufficiently confirmed, and that there is no longer any use to hope.

Meanwhile the better turn that affairs were said to be taking has failed to materialize, and the opposite is true instead. There is danger of the insurrection spreading. And the worst surprise has been the way the Chinese show themselves capable of fighting. This is the most alarming feature in the whole situation, for it at least makes it possible that the foreign powers will be totally unable to cope with the situation until much time is consumed in transporting additional troops. What was to be the work of a few squads of soldiers is found to require armies instead. Japan is said to be moving energetically towards putting a large army in China at once, and in this lies the present hope.

Our government now has in China or on the way 10,000 troops, which it believes to be its share, and is, in fact, about the limit of its immediate resources. The government has enunciated a plain and emphatic policy, excluding all selfish interests or desire to get a forthold in China, and will do everything possible to protect its citizens and their rights there. But the terrible point now is that nobody is able to save the suffering foreigners.

GUILFORD WILL BE IN LINE.

Every rising sun brings increased evidence that the amendment is assure to carry as that the sun will rise on the second day of next month. The Raleigh Post says:

One actually feels it. And the threats of Blackburn, the incendiary teachings of Butler, the assaults of Holton and negroes upon Democratic registrars have aroused the people from one end of the State to the other. We have only known the good people so aroused twice before, in July of 1870 when Tennessee rag-a-muffins were brought in to intimidate the people, and in 1898 when the negro Manly perpetrated his infamous slander upon the "poor white women" of the State, for which he was driven into exile. We all know what the result was on both these occasions. Now federal officials with the aid of petty tools acting as United States commissioners to the disgrace of the government, are attempting to intimidate registrars and force upon the registration books ineligible negroes whose votes are wanted to offset the votes of honest white citizens.

And in the great result of sweeping negro supremacy forever from the State, Guilford will have borne her part. It has been said that Guilford is in "bad shape." The testimony we publish elsewhere is ample refutation of that. Let Democrats continue to work, that is all that is nesessary. A glorious victory will crown their efforts. Negro influence in the politics of North Carolina is doomed.

Only one more day remains in which to register. Not only should every Democrat himself register, but he should see that his neighbor does the same thing. This is no ordinary year. The future of North Carolina is in the balance, and no man can fail to do his duty.

We have added to our exchange list the "Anti-Dispensary News," advocating more whiskey and the purification of the church, and issued every other Saturday night from crawfish headquarters, No. 2, Jim Jam Alley.

"What! A man with a nose the color of yours expects me to believe that he has lived on water for three months?" said the lady at the door. "Yes'm," said the tramp; "you see, I'm a sailor just ashore."—Yonkers Statesman.

THE BENNET CUP.

The International Automobile Championship.

America will be represented in the first contest for the Bennett International Cup, given by James Gordon Bennett to the Automobile Club of France as a perpetual challenge trophy for the international automobile road championship. The automobile clubs of Belgium, Austria, America, Switzerland, Turin, Great Britain and Germany are eligible and of these Belgium, Great Britain, Turin (Italy), and France will meet the Yankees in the first contest.

The race will take place on June 14, over a course in France yet to be selected, at a distance of from 340 to 400 miles. Under the rules vehicles must weigh at least 800 pounds, exclusive of passengers and supplies, must carry at least two persons, and must be driven by a member of the challenging automobile club. The winning country has the privilege of choosing the course for the next contest, though all the races under present conditions will be run in France, as that is the only country which grants the right of way on the road absolutely necessary for such competitions.

Each country is allowed three representatives and the Automobile Club of America, our national organization, has already selected two of ours, Alexander Winton, of Cleveland, Ohio, and A. L. Riker, of New York City. The third representative will be chosen by the committee, of which Albert C. Bostwick is chairman, by competition. The trial races will probably be run on a track and be of five or six hours duration, as no automobile not being able to run for this time without a stop would stand a living show in the race. The trials will be private and so will the practice spins of our representatives abroad, as it would be poor policy to let the competitors know our speed.

Tight Bearings.

A rider who is by no means stupid was complaining to a dealer that he had taken an ugly fall that was due to his bearings having run up tight and jammed. They did so, he said, because there was nothing in the catalogue of the maker that explained how to adjust the bearings and lock them and he had failed to perceive the locking device. The wheelman contended that the man who sold the wheel should have been bound by contract to the maker to explain the working of every part to every buyer, or else the manufacturer should put in the tool bag of every machine a pamphlet giving full instructions concerning every detail of construction and adjustment of it, so that the rider could learn from it how to take it apart as comfortably as if under the eye of an instructor without making a mistake. The rider added to his argument the statement that because he did not know a certain nut was set on with a left-hand thread he had turned it to the right in trying to unscrew it and set it it up so tight that he burred all the edges and ruined the nut in undoing it. The dealer who listened to the complaint agreed with the rider concerning the pamphlet of instructions in the tool bag. He excused the retail men by saying that many buyers simply ordered wheels shipped and few would stop and let a salesman take a wheel apart for them, even if the salesman had time to do it. Manufacturers should print in their catalogues a graphic recital of how to take apart and put together their own particular wheels with illustrations and cautions of what not to do and also some hints on cleaning and repairing and the general care of the machine. A very few makers have adopted this suggestion in part.

Automobiles in the Public Service.

The utility of the automobile in the public service is manifold. We now have in actual use automobiles as ambulances, automobiles as watering carts, automobiles as fire engines, automobiles as omnibuses, automobiles as mercantile delivery wagons, automobiles as engines of war, automobiles as postal wagons, automobiles as hose carts and automobiles as racing machines.. The limit of the automobile's utility seems to be measured only by the number of kinds of things awheel.

Automobile vs. Sleigh.

Rose Coghlan, the actress, recently engaged in a novel race at Rochester, the loser's penalty being a dinner. She was the driver of an automobile and her opponent was behind a fast trotter hitched to a sleigh. The course was from the center of Rochester to a suburban hotel at Brighton. Despite the snow and Miss Coghlan's inexperience as a chauffeur, the last century horse and sleigh were left nearly a block behind at the finish.

A CLOSE SHAVE.

Thrilling Experience of Two Troopers in South Africa.

He was sitting with his back against a bowlder, with his rifle barrel resting on a stone, the stock on his knees. He was using the stock for a desk, and was writing laboriously in pencil on a crumpled sheet of paper.

"This is devilish hard work," he exclaimed, "but I must get it done today. I was always a poor fist at a letter. How do you spell 'reconnaissance?'"

Trooper 943 gave him the idea of it.

"That's all wrong," he said. "I'm sure there isn't a 'k' in it. But it is of little consequence. All my spelling is gone to the deuce. I never learned anything at school, and not much after I left."

Trooper 943 laughed. "Seems to me you know a lot," he said.

"No blarney! If you don't know as much you ought to be ashamed of yourself."

"Got him?"

"I wouldn't like to be the bloke's wife and fam'ly.

"Tell me if you see anything else. I must get this finished."

He scribbled on for a while in silence, dropped his pencil, picked it up, and rose to stretch himself.

"Git down, stoopid!" said Trooper 943.

A second bullet buzzed and the other's right arm dropped to his side.

"Slick through the shoulder," he said. He sat down again, looking a little pale.

"Now you've bin and spoilt your 'and-writing," said 943. "Told you so. Does it 'urt?"

"No, not much. Here, just sign my name at the end of that letter, will you?"

Trooper 943 signed the name in a shambling, awkward hand. Then he began to grumble again.

"Just like you! The best in our little lot got a 'ole in him. Bli' me, if you ain't a daisy!"

The other took the letter and crammed it into his pocket with his left hand.

The men were on their feet and in the saddle in a moment, all but Trooper 943, who fell to one of the twenty bullets that had spit among them. The letter writer was down again in a flash and had him across his horse. Trooper 943 laughed again, though rather feebly. "Well, you are a daisy!" he said.

"Shut up!"

They did get copped, but it was a ride to be remembered all the days of a man's life. Also, the letter was spoiled.

"You ought to 'ave the medal," said 943 some hours later. "You fair saved me."

"Did I?" said a voice from the next bed. "And you spoilt my letter, you ungrateful beggar. You might have chosen somewhere else to bleed."

"Fair saved me, you did," he said. "You ain't a gentleman, are you? Oh, no!"

"JOHNNY ON THE SPOT."

How An Old Rube Flim-Flammed a Western Crowd.

He strolled into an Omaha saloon and timidly approaching the bar inquired of the white-aproned mixer if he might "take a cheer and rest a little while." He said his valise was too heavy to "pack" about with him and, besides, he was waiting for a man to come there and pay him $50. The old man looked the part of a Reuben. He wore homemade clothing and his cotton trousers were stuffed down in the tops of his heavy, mud-bespattered boots. He seemed ill at ease in a saloon and made no offer to buy anything. Attracted by his pastoral appearance, the bartender and two or three loungers engaged "Uncle Josh" inconversation. They wanted to know about the $50 he was to receive.

"Well, hits jes' like this," said the old man. "A comin' in on the kyars this mornin' I met a young feller in trouble. He was a smart appearin' chap an' he was takin' his dead sister back to Injiany to bury her. When we got to the depot he foun' out thet he didn't hev quite money enough to pay the charges. I loant him $50 until he kin git a check cashed. He's bin to town afore an' he directed me to come hyar and wait for him. He's to be here at 10 o'clock with the money."

"Yes, he'll be here," said the bartender, with a sarcastic sneer.

"Course he'll be here, bekase he said he would," "Uncle Josh" replied.

The fun that followed aroused the old man and he indignantly offered to bet that his newly found friend would appear. The bartender put up all the money he had, and the loungers chipped in for another pot. The old man covered it. It was then half an hour until 10 o'clock. While the minutes ticked away "Uncle Josh" paced the floor, refusing all offers of a drink.

Promptly at 10 o'clock the swinging doors came open and a dapper young man with a badge of crepe around his hat walked briskly in. He clasped hands with "Uncle Josh" and reverently thanked him for the accommodation. At the same time he pressed a roll of money into the old man's hands and asked him to count it and see if he had made any mistake.

"Now, by golly, here's my fifty! What'd I tell ye?" exclaimed "Uncle Josh." When he and the young man emerged they divided the spoils.

JACK CHINN ON THE STAND.

Georgetown Special 16th.

In the trial of former Secretary Caleb Powers, charged with being accessory to the Goebel murder, which was resumed today, a letter alleged to be signed by Caleb Powers, in which this expression appeared: "I have had a hard time getting Taylor and others to start, but they are all right now and this thing will soon end," was filed and made a part of the record. Telegrams sent from Barboursville, Powers' home, having a bearing on the case, were put in evidence and identified by the manager of Barboursville telegraph office. The first telegrams read were from Powers to various captains alleged to have been charged with getting up the excursion of mountain men to Frankfort. Most of them read: "How many can you insure from your county? Wire immediately. (Sig.) C. Powers.

The defence filed a formal objection to their competency as evidence. The witness, Mrs. Anderson, declared that some one had tampered with many of the messages on file in her office for January and February. Dr. John Smith, of Frankfort, one of the physicians who attended Goebel, testified as to the wounds. He was followed by Colonel Jack Chinn, who was with Goebel when the shooting occurred. Chinn said there had been crowds in the State house yard every day during January, and members of the Legislature had to elbow their way through daily to get to the State house. At the time of the assassination there was not a human being in the yard except possibly one or two about the gates. The first shot seemed to come, he said, from a window in the Secretary of State's office. The other shots were muffled and the witness could not tell where they came from. Witness said he saw a window in Powers' office slightly raised. Colonel Chinn was asked if he could identify the clothing worn by Senator Goebel when he was shot. The blood-stained garments were removed from the trunk and he identified them. Continuing, Colonel Chinn said that eight or ten minutes after the assassination, the troops took charge of the State house. The cross-examination did not reveal anything new.

W. B. Anderson, who kept a hotel at Barbourville, and Finley Anderson, his son, were also on the stand.

MALICE NOT IN HIS HEART

An Army Story of Hate and Brotherly Love.

DETECTIVE'S NARRATIVE

An Officer and a Corporal in the Southwest—Enmity Brought Bitterness to Both—Friendship and Death Together in the Philippines.

St. Louis detective was talking to some professional associates recently and told this story:

"Quite a stretch of years ago I was soldiering with a doughboy outfit of the regular army down in the Southwest. One of my bunkies—I'll call him Ned Gannon, which is not so far from his real name—had been a mate of mine when we were both kids down on the St. Louis levees, although we hadn't met again until we ran into each other in the army. Gannon had struck the outfit a couple of years ahead of me, and he had the corporal's chevrons when I got there. He was a good man and a good soldier, was this Gannon, but somehow or other he had incurred the enmity of one of the officers of our company, a Second Lieutenant, who had got his shoulder straps via the 'mustang' route—that is, by promotion from the ranks. We'll just call this Second Lieutenant Neil, which is close enough to his right name, too.

"This Neil you may suppose, was a crackerjack soldier; for dubs don't pass the examination for promotion from the ranks in the American army. He was a pretty decent officer to the men, besides—to all of them, that is to say, except Ned Gannon. He surely did have it in bad for Gannon. I never knew why, and I don't know yet. But the way Neil rubbed it in on Gannon was a holy show. He had Gannon broke to the ranks soon after I joined the outfit for some trivial cause connected with guard duty. Gannon didn't say much, but the line of thinks he must have entertained with regard to the Second Lieutenant occasionally shown out in the blaze of his eyes when they lit upon the shape of the young mustang officer. Two months after he busted him the Second Lieutenant got Gannon into the clink on a charge of neglect of duty while on post as a sentinel. Gannon narrowly escaped a general court-martial on that charge, which was unquestionably trumped up, and the summary court gave him thirty days with labor. When he got out and resumed duty he told me there was murder in his heart for the Second Lieutenant.

"'I'll get hunk with him,' he told me with savage quietude, 'if it takes me twenty years to do it. I'll play evens with that one all right.'

"Ten days later Gannon was in the guardhouse again, awaiting trial by general court-martial. Neil, the Second Lieutenant, had got Gannon into the orderly room on some pretext or other and grossly insulted him, and Gannon, unable to hold himself in any longer, had opened up on the mustang and would have struck his tormentor had not the top sergeant of the company leaped behind him and pinioned his arms.

"Gannon got six months hard labor at the hands of the general court-martial, and a bob-tail besides—that is, a dishonorable discharge from the service—for it is a pretty serious thing for an enlisted man to be even accused of attempting to strike a commissioned officer.

"Now here was a case of a good soldier who really got the worst of it at the hands of an officer—a thing that doesn't, as a matter of fact, often happen in our service, where justice is the rule. When Gannon's six months in the clink was up he was escorted to the gate by a file of the guard. I gave him a bum suit of civilian's clothes that I had in my box, and we all chipped in and handed him a ten-dollar note with which to start life over again. We'd have given him more, but it was between pay days.

"'I'll get square with that Geezer' were the last words Gannon said to me before he was drummed out. Three months later I got a letter from him, dated St. Louis. He announced that he had got on the St. Louis police force.

"I served my enlistment and went back to y home in St. Louis, where Ned Gannon put me next to the way to get into the police force, and I got on. That's Part I of the story.

"One afternoon, a year ago last April, Ned Gannon was patrolling his beat when he happened up against a drunk. The drunk was a fine-looking man, shabbily dressed. He had a book under his arm. He was a book agent. He was ex-Lieutenant Neil, and Gannon recognized him.

"Gannon took Neil to his own home and sobered him up. He got Neil into shape. Why he did it I don't know. I asked him why it was he was caring for his old enemy that way—but he never answered me. I don't understand it yet. Ned put some clothes on Neil's back and got Neil to looking fine, strong and clear-eyed. Then Ned did some politics for Neil, and got the ex-Lieutenant a job in the St. Louis tax office as a clerk.

"They both got to hankering for soldiering when the Spanish war was well under way. That hankering is liable to hit a man through life who's ever wore a uniform on land or sea. Neil and Gannon from talking about became possessed of the craze to go to the Philippines, and they cast around for a tip on an outfit that was booked to go down there. They got the tip and both threw up their jobs and joined a Kansas outfit as buck privates, Gannon under his right name and Neil under an assumed name—for a man who's known to be a cashiered officer can't get back into the service even as an enlisted man. That's the wind-up of Part II, and it's all on the dead level, at that.

"Well, I got hold of a paper on the cars while making a trip a few months back, and read an account of the fighting before Malolos, then Aguinaldo's capital. In the list of the killed among the men of that Kansas outfit were Gannon's name and Neil's fictitious name. Well, when Ned Gannon stood to attention and answered to his name and number on the other side of the Great Divide, I'll bet he got a white mark for not bearing malice."

The Brighter Day.

"There's a brighter day a-comin',"
Don't you know?
Keep the chorus hummin'—hummin'
As you go.
There's a day of golden hours,
And sunny April showers
That'll freshen all the flowers,
Don't you know?

"There's a brighter day a-comin',"
Don't you know?
Hark! the regiments are drummin'
High and low;
For Joy has slipped his tether,
And Joy and Hope's together,
And we're marching to fair weather
Don't you know?

"There's a brighter day a-comin',"
Sing it so!
Keep the chorus hummin'—hummin'
As you go!
Bright skies above us rendin'
Sweet messages are sendin',
And God's love is unendin',
Don't you know?

OF INTEREST TO LABOR.

San Francisco, Cal., has a Latin carpenters' union.

London, England, will have a Printing Exposition in the present year.

Dayton, Ohio, according to a recent compilation now has over 6,000 trades unionists.

There are 193 trades unions in the city of Philadelphia.

The Pattern Makers' National League has 4,000 members in the United States.

The result of the Cuban war has given a wonderful impetus to the cigar makers' organization in Florida. Union No. 36 at Tampa has increased nearly 500 members in the last three months.

Arkansas is building a new state house, to be of brick made by convict labor, and the construction also to be done by convicts almost exclusively. Under these conditions the state authorities figure that they will secure a magnificent edifice at a cost of about $1,000,000.

Cotton manufacturing has a big boom in Texas during this year, as nearly $1,000,000 has been spent in the erection of new plants at Corsicana, Henderson, Hillsboro, Mt. Vernon, Taylor, Dillon, Cameron, Whitney, Sequin and other points in that state.

The Milwaukee Gas Light Company has adopted a profit-sharing plan with its employes. Each person in its employ one year or over will receive in addition to regular wages a sum equal to 6 per cent on the wages paid in the previous six months.

The minimum legal wage law is now in force in the colony of Victoria, Australia. Under the law no employer can offer an employe—nor can an employe accept—less than the stipulated rate which, of course, varies for different occupations. For instance, journeymen bakers must receive at least 25 cents an hour, while their apprentices must receive at least $1.50 per week. Under the law the piecework plan, of course, becomes inoperative.

The Carnegie Steel Company has decided to introduce the pay car system at its Homestead Steel Works. The company has 5,000 workmen to pay twice each month at these works alone, and the car will be run through the several departments in the immense establishment. It is thought that this arrangement will be more satisfactory than that of having so large a number of wrokmen call at the pay office.

The long-expected consolidation of the sheet mills of the country is now under way, and it is expected it will be completed by April 1. A committee of the manufacturers has commenced work on the project, and it is understood that Judge W. H. Moore, of Chicago, who so successfully promoted the Tin Plate, Steel Hoop and other trusts, is at the head of the scheme.

A new plan for industrial colonies is to be tried in Southeastern Kansas, where coal, wood, gas and farm lands will be acquired by a community of laboring people who are seeking homes with congenial surroundings at a small cost of outlay. The projectors of this colony have fully taken into consideration the ups and downs of former attempts, and are very confident that the new plan will insure a rapid and grand success. Labor exchange principles will be applied to all public utilities, while the individual rights of each will be protected and encouraged in every respect.

The city of Boston has been officially put on an eight-hour basis in accordance with the act of the last Legislature, and which was accepted by the voters at the election December 12. The act provides that eight hours shall constitute a day's work for all laborers, workmen and mechanics now employed by or on behalf of any city or town in this commonwealth. It was also provided that it should go into effect on the day of its acceptance by vote at any annual election.

I WISH TO INFORM YOU that I have moved my shoe shop to No. 206 South Davie street, between John J. Phoenix and C. A. Clapp's stores, opposite the market house, where I will do first class work using only the best stock and save you ten per cent in price. L. B. Albertson.

Much Work for Good Roads.

Now that the League of American Whelmen has abolished its racing department every attention will be given the other branches of work. The most important of these is the highway improvement department in which is entrusted the work in behalf of the good roads movement, which was started by the L. A. W., and which has been constantly agitated by it for over twenty years. The League has made rapid strides in this movement, particularly during the past year, but the racing question has reflected upon this as upon all other departments, the belief being disseminated that none of the branches of League work could be made effective until the racing question was settled.

The most important work accomplished last year was the holding of many good roads conventions in various states, the introduction of highway improvement measures in many of the State Legislatures and the evolution of the movement to national proportions, as was evidenced by the bill introduced in Congress calling for an appropriation of $5,000,000.

It is ascertained on scientific data that the air resistance to a railway train of average weight moving sixty miles an hour is 11,374 pounds—nearly six tons.
